Emerging author Nicole Sarrantonio publishes a collection of thrilling and suspenseful stories titled A Boy, A Ghost, And A Killer Ice Cream Man.

NOW AVAILABLE FOR REVIEW

Orlando, FL, May 22, 2020 - A new e-book, published by emerging author Nicole Sarrantonio, is now available through Smashwords.com. This collection of flash fiction, ranging from psychological thriller to quiet horror, is available on Smashwords.com for $0.99.

The opening story of the collection is titled “John’s Car” and follows twelve-year-old Ernie as he eagerly awaits for his older brother, John, to return from war. Ernie vigilantly watches over his brother’s DeSoto, and believes that nothing can harm John as long as the car still stands. This story stands as a testament to the love and bond that brotherhood creates.

In “The Ghost”, a young woman, haunted by two men to whom she owes a debt she cannot repay, must leave her fiancé behind and start a new life after the safety of the man she loves is threatened. In her escape, she must find a new identity, grapple with guilt she feels about her choices, and mourn the loss of love and hope.

The final story, “I Scream, You Scream” tells the tale of Ed, a cranky ice cream man who accidentally runs over and kills a young boy. Ed panics and must figure out how to handle the situation before he gets caught with a dead body. His decisions reflect the depravity and darkness that are present deep within all of us.

Nicole Sarrantonio is a novelist who writes psychological thrillers and quiet horror stories. She attends Full Sail University where she is pursuing a BFA in Creative Writing. Formerly the editor-in-chief for the literary magazine Fragments, she also worked as a content writer and has published flash fiction in The Scarlet Leaf Review. She lives in Orlando with her emotional support gnome. She can be found on Twitter and Instagram @vivalanik.
